18. Orphanage Visit

Thursday, 26th January 2023; Students of Sharadchandra Pawar College of Pharmacy, along with faculty members visited Orphanage named SGMSPM, s Shri Gajanan Maharaj Kanya Chatralay (shelter home for girls). 30 student volunteers from SPCOP accompanied by Faculty Coordinators Dr. Jayant Bidkar, Dr. Joshi Sumit, Mr. Huppargge, Mrs. Bidkar Shital and Principal, Dr. Ganesh Dama. Visit to an Orphanage is a life-changing experience as it is filled with emotions and sentiments. We were lucky to get an opportunity to visit an Orphanage. Near about 40 Girls with 1 care-taker and a woman in charge were present at the time of visit. It was a two-storey building with a terrace. There was a common hall. Most of the girls were busy in their daily schedule when we entered the hostel. The age group of the girls were ranging from 10 years to 16 years.

When we entered, most of the girls started staring at us. We had brought food with us. We segregated ourselves and started to serve food individually to everyone. All girls made queues in a much disciplined way. We all interacted with them. After interacting with girls, we found out that everyone was so active and happy there. Elder girls were informing us about the rules and regulation that everyone in the shelter is supposed to follow. Like no one can leave the hostel without permission, cleanliness in the premises, discipline in their daily activities etc. After visiting the orphanage you start appreciating the little things in life when you see people who don't have them. Only at such times do you tide over the insignificant and immaterial things and appreciate the bigger picture.

19. Gender Issue Programme

Informative and Demonstrative Sessions About Menstrual Health and Hygiene to Girls and Females

An awareness program on “Informative and Demonstrative Sessions About Menstrual Health and Hygiene to Girls and Females” was conducted on 28th January 2023, which was organized by Women Development Cell of Sharadchandra Pawar College of Pharmacy, Otur, Pune. Lecture was delivered by Mrs. Rajashri Malegaonkar, Chief managing Director of Social Awareness Mission For Women. She expressed her views on Menstrual Health and Hygiene (MHH) how it is essential to the well-being and empowerment of women and adolescent girls. On any given day, more than 300 million women worldwide are menstruating. In total, an estimated 500 million lack access to menstrual products and adequate facilities for menstrual hygiene management (MHM). To effectively manage their menstruation, girls and women require access to water, sanitation and hygiene (WASH) facilities, affordable and appropriate menstrual hygiene materials, information on good practices, and a supportive environment where they can manage menstruation without embarrassment or stigma. The challenges that menstruating girls, women, and other menstruates face encompass more than a basic lack of supplies or infrastructure.

While menstruation is a normal and healthy part of life for most women and girls, in many societies, the experience of menstruates continues to be constrained by cultural taboos and discriminatory social norms. She expressed that the resulting lack of information about menstruation leads to unhygienic and unhealthy menstrual practices and creates misconceptions and negative attitudes, which motivate, among others, shaming, bullying, and even gender-based violence. She guided that the multi-dimensional issues that menstruators face require multi-sectoral interventions. WASH professionals alone cannot come up with all of the solutions to tackle the intersecting issues of inadequate sanitary facilities, lack of information and knowledge, lack of access to affordable and quality menstrual hygiene products, and the stigma and social norms associated with menstruation.

Makar Sankranti, also referred to as Uttarayana, Makar, or simply Sankranti, is a Hindu observance and a festival. Usually falling on the date of 14 January annually, this occasion marks the transition of the sun from the zodiac of Sagittarius to Capricorn. Since the sun has made this transition which vaguely coincides with moving from south to north, the festival is dedicated to the solar deity, Surya, and is observed to mark a new beginning. Many native multi-day festivals are organised on this occasion all over India. This year SPCOP lady staff celebrated Makar Sankranti on 26th January 2023. The second day is called Sankranti and on this day, married women dress up in ethnic wear and have a get-together called Haldi-Kumkum which translates to turmeric-vermilion. They apply a dot of each on each other's forehead where the bindi is usually applied and also gift each other household items that range from utensils to clothes, etc. The last day is called Kinkrant. ### 1. Lifestyle

In busy days and hurried nights,
Our modern lives unfold in lights.
Screens hum with their ceaseless pace,
As we navigate life's crowded space

From sunrise to sunset, dreams take flight,
In cities where echoes fade from sight.
We seek our truths in plans well-made,
In life's rush, our paths are laid.

Yet amidst the chaos, a whisper calls,
To pause, to breathe, beyond four walls.
In quiet moments, in nature's embrace,
We rediscover life's gentle grace.

A sip of tea, a quiet start
, Morning calm soothes the heart.
Dawn's soft light, a gentle sight,
In its embrace, worries take flight.

Simple joys in morning's grace,
Quiet moments, a peaceful place.
Embrace the day with open arms,

Where dreams bloom in dawn's charms.

2. “Dreams Unfulfilled”

In the depths of my soul, a flame once burned bright.

A passion that drove me, a heart full of light
A dream that seemed possible, a goal in sight
But now it's a memory, a distant, fading light.

Time went by, and life got in the way.

Reality hit hard, and my dreams drifted away.
Like sand between fingers, they slipped through my grasp.
Leaving me with longing and a heart that aches at last.

But still, I hold on to the embers of the past.
The glow of what could've been, the fire that didn't last
For in the darkness, it's the memories that remain.
A bittersweet reminder of dreams unfulfilled yet still sustained

It literally feels like regret that it will remain incomplete, but what to do? We should be satisfied with what we have now.

Though the flame has dwindled, it still flickers within.
A spark that refuses to die, a glimmer of what could begin
Perhaps someday, somehow, it will ignite once more.
And the dreams I thought were lost will rise from the ashes,
reborn!

3. A second Home to me : COLLEGE

Being a girl from Mumbai, I have always thought of having a college life. An enthusiastic and most awaited part of my life. But never had I imagined that I will have to shift and leave my home. Scared at first, somehow things came to my understanding. To live I need to Leave and college has provided me enough for it. It's a dream come true with teachers and staff so supportive and always ready to help out. My parent's cried thinking I am leaving home but when I reached here things changed. Assurance and help was always provided and I am glad to tell this is my second home. Mother like teachers and staff have made me feel I am also a part of this place. There were tough times adjusting thru but this home has given me enough love to be strong.

A poem dedicated to my second home:

Life is strange with its twists and turns
As every one of us sometimes learns
And many a failure comes about
When he might have won had he stuck it out;
Don't give up though the pace seems slow-
You may succeed with another blow.

4. She is different now .....

She's changed a lot lately.
She gets up early, eats good food, and's really into her job.
She doesn't hang out much
She hits the gym instead
She's not into talking to guys
She's all about her schoolwork
She doesn't have many friends, but she really cares about her family.
She's really disciplined, works hard, and is super sweet.
She always has a big smile and is super warm.
She doesn't waste her time on people who don't treat her right.
She's cut ties with everyone who didn't deserve her.
She wasn't always like this.
Love and friendships broke her down over time.
She's dealt with depression, anxiety, and other issues, but she's come out stronger.
She's been through a lot of pain and is learning how to move forward.
She's a true miracle.
She's healing from her past,
Keeping her heart safe,

5. Computer Aided Drug Design: Rational Approaches in Medicinal Chemistry

Computer Aided Drug Design means In-Silico techniques in the field of the Drug Design and Development. It plays the important role in the drug discovery and development activity. Discovery and development is the very complex process but it is simplified and reduces the costing of the Practical work in laboratory with reducing valuable time also. Hence In-silico techniques reduce time, money, manpower. The Major approaches in CADD include Structure based drug design and Ligand based drug design. Both these Direct acting and In-direct acting types respectively. The Structure based drug design related with identification of target which is protein. This is determined by X-ray, Crystallography, homology modeling and NMR Spectroscopy. Various chemical compounds Structures are interacted with biological protein on virtual screening method. By using this process the score and ranking is to be obtained on the basis of electrostatic, hydrophobic, steric interactions of these chemical structures with active site of the target protein. Finally those are to be top ranked and having the good scored only tested for Biological assays.

Target identification and validation is the initial step in it. Then it go for analysis structure for potential ligand sites. Molecular Docking shows the interaction between lead and receptor sites. After Validation and optimization of the compounds sends towards clinical trials. So various processes are to be done in case of structure based drug design.

It appears to be most effective technique in case of drug design and discovery. It gives more potent drug candidates by reducing the unwanted properties such as poor efficacy, poor ADMET by using in silico filters.

In case of Ligand based drug design target protein structure is not known. On the basis of lead structure it should be known that where ligand to be bind on desired target site. In this way all possible modification are to be done to develop the phamacophore of molecule so is should posseses all required features for binding with target site. Ligand based technique is phamacophore based technique and Quantitative structure activity relationships method. Ligand based drug design shows that t hose structures having similarity in size and shape hey are showing the same biological action and interaction with target site. Molecular Docking is in-sillico method shows the interaction of molecule within the active site of their target protein and receptor.

6. Is your name Trouble?

In the world of pharmacy, where knowledge is key,
There's a group of students who simply won't let you be.
They sit at the back, whispering and causing a fuss,
Annoying the teachers, and annoying us.

The back benchers in pharmacy, oh how they grate,
With their constant chatter and their tendency to be late.
They never pay attention, never take notes,
And when it comes to exams, they always seem to gloat.

They think they're so cool, with their laid-back attitude,
But in reality, they're a total pain in the mood.
They disrupt the class, and they slow us all down,
Their behavior is enough to make anyone frown.

They pass notes back and forth, giggling at their jokes,
While the rest of us struggle to concentrate and cope.
They think they're above the rules, that they can do as they please,
But really, they're just making it harder for the rest of us to succeed.

Their lack of respect for the teachers is astounding,
They talk over them, and never stop pounding.
Their pens on the table, their feet on the chair,
Their constant noise filling the air.

But despite all their antics, we must soldier on,
For in pharmacy school, there is much to be done.
We study hard, we put in the hours,
Knowing that one day, we'll have the power.

To help those in need, to heal the sick,
To make a real difference with our knowledge and our wit.
So we try to ignore the back benchers in our midst,
And focus on our studies, our path, our twist.

But still, they persist, with their annoying ways,
Making us dread each and every new day.
For they are a constant reminder of the challenges we face,
But we refuse to let them slow our pace.

For we are determined, we are strong,
And together, we'll prove them wrong.
We'll rise above the distractions, the noise,
And emerge victorious, with our dreams in place.

So to the back benchers in pharmacy, we say this:
Your antics are annoying, but they won't be amiss.
For we will overcome, we will succeed,
And in the end, we'll have the last word, indeed.
