PLANET PLASTIC

*Mr. Devhadrao Nitin Vasantrya
Assistant Professor
Department of Pharmaceutics, SPCOP*

“We are rapidly heading towards plastic and if we don't want to live on that kind of world then we may have to rethink how we use the materials in particular plastic “

- 8300 million tons of virgin plastics have been produced.
- Half of this material was made in just 13 years.
- About 30% of the historic production remains in use.
- Of the discarded plastic, roughly 9% have been recycled.
- Current trends point to 12 billion tons of waste by 2050.

“We don't inherit the Earth from ancestors, we borrow it from children “

The point is that when it comes to earth no one owns it, that we are simply borrowing and when we borrow something we need to take care of it. We don't want to leave a mess with huge challenges for other generation to deal with.

“Beat the plastic pollution” the theme for World Environment Day 2018 is a call to action for all of us to come together to combat one of the great environmental challenges of our time. Every year we use 1 million plastic drinking bottles and 5 trillion disposable plastic bags. In total 50% of the plastic we use is single use therefore we being humans if we can't reuse it, we must learn to refuse it.

We must be mere stewards of the land and its resources not users and consumers. We only have one Earth we need to take better care of it and we already know how.

ARTICLE BY STAFF AND STUDENTS

USE OF APPS TO CURE DISEASE

Rahul Dighe

B.Pharm Final Year

Recently, I came across many articles about the use of app to diagnose diseases. This piece of information really made me curious to know more about it. After that I also watched a couple of videos on the topic. It was really fascinating to watch those videos.

As a pharmacist, I think this new development is worth our attention. As we have decided to dedicate our entire life towards fighting diseases, this piece of news should help us (pharmacists) to cheer up a bit.

Apps have become a part and parcel of our life. We might or might not like this fact but as the saying goes 'truth is always bitter', we have to admit this new phenomenon.

Since, apps have become a way of life, so why not we use this new virtual friend of ours to diagnose and may be someday in the near future even cure certain diseases.

Many pharmacists may argue that this is an alarm for the pharmacist fraternity. However, I think the other way. This new trend in technology can be used as our tool in curing diseases.

More than 1.2 million people living in London are to be offered medical diagnosis using Babylon – an 'artificial intelligence' (AI) app which gives patients access to a virtual health service in their pocket.

Babylon's AI doctor is just one of the powerful tools that have transformed smartphone into mobile medical clinics.

In 2016 the U.S. Food & Drug Administration approved 36 smartphone apps and devices.

"I think it's high time in India as well to change our curriculum and include subjects such as app designing. Pharma companies too need to innovate and invest in these medico apps. The PCI should pay immediate attention to this new development".

GENDER DISCRIMINATION

Panchami Hiraie
B.Pharm Final Year

I am telling this from my own experience of our own civilization. My aunt who works as a teacher in a primary school of a rural area. One day she was telling about an incident of her school to siblings' one boy and one girl who used to study in her school in class four. Suddenly the girl was not attending the school from 3 -4 days and when she asked her brother why your sister is not coming to school? Then he replied that she is chasing crows at home means the cow had given a birth to a calf the crows are hitting the new born calf with beaks. The girl was protecting the calf. In our modern civilization basically in rural area people are discriminating females, since we have given same rights to both men and women, but still in some rural areas mostly the society is under men domination. Still females are being suppressed when a girl is born in a family mostly the family thinks that she is the sinister for their family. They think they have birth to expense at last they will go to others house after getting married. The society doesn't accept as much as the boy the society doesn't prefer higher studies and other co- curriculum activities for girls. The society thinks that girls are born to do household works and to serve the men. They are bound with an invisible handcuff. Let us focus on the crisis /problems of the rural girls .from the young age they have to compromise on studies and they have to focus on their household works and they are restricted to do other things. Being a rural girl they have many female health related problem which they can't freely and openly share to their families they face poor health care and also suffer from different diseases also. Still the main problem is child marriage no one wants to know what does she wants ? Her heart always says" I AM A GIRL CHILD DON'T MAKE ME CHILD MOTHER". The female is still not given proper treatment, care, love if she gives a birth to a baby girl but they never think that the girl is mother of new generation. Now we need to change our thinking and thoughts and need to learn from the young female achievers like Hima Das (IAAF gold medalist), chanda Gayen (Everester) who have set an inspirational example for other rural girls.
