SGMSPM's Sharadchandra Pawar college of Pharmacy, Dumbarwadi, otur has successfully installed Sanitary Napkins Vending Machine and napkin incinerator in Girl's Common Room on 5th September 2019. The vending machine was installed to ensure an effective, safe and convenient mode for any time access to sanitary napkins. The purpose is to promote safe and hygienic- sanitary practices among women and girls of SPCOP. Whenever any girl in the college would need a sanitary napkin, she would either have to ask the Faculty in charge or rush to a nearest medical store to purchase a pack of sanitary napkins. Mrs. Shital J. Bidkar said that a social taboo was observed to be attached with sanitary napkins, wherein a majority of girls and women hesitate to go to medicine outlets to buy them. This results in unsafe practices and the use of unhygienic materials during their menstrual period. Using a sanitary napkin vending machine is no rocket science. A girl requiring a sanitary pad needs to put a Rs. 5 coin in the machine and outcomes the sanitary napkin. On the same day the Electric Incinerator was also installed in SPCOP. The electric incinerator provides an environment-friendly alternative for disposal as they convert each sanitary napkin into one milligram of sterile ash. These machines would bring relief to sanitary workers in institution where these products are collected and burnt. Menstrual hygiene management (MHM) refers to the creation of an ecosystem that allows women and girls to experience menstruation in a safe and dignified manner. Mrs. Shital J. Bidkar, head of Women Development Cell said that this is the need of the hour and will ensure hygienic practices among girl students. DID YOU KNOW: WHITE TEA IS A HEALTHY DRINK

*Mr. Devhadrao Nitin V.
Department of Pharmaceutics,
SPCOP, Otur*

When you have symptoms of cold, flu, COVID-19 (coronavirus) or other viruses and infections, properly wearing a surgical facemask can help protect others from getting sick. It is important that you follow infection prevention precautions when putting the mask on and taking the mask off. If you are one of those people who need to wear a facemask, follow these instructions for how to put on and take off a surgical mask. There are several types of facemasks. The most common are: Medical (or surgical) masks – for general public use N95 particle respirator masks – for health care professionals

How to Put the Mask On

Wash your hands with soap and water for at least 20 seconds. Dry your hands with a clean paper towel and throw the paper towel away. Check the mask for any defects such as a tear or missing tie or ear loop. Throw away any that are defective. Make sure the exterior (usually yellow or blue) side of the mask is facing out, away from your face. Place the mask on your face with the blue side facing out and the stiff, bendable edge at the top by your nose. If the mask has ear loops, put one loop around each ear. If the mask has ties, pick up the mask by the ties and tie the upper ties behind your head with a bow. Once the mask is in place, use your index finger and thumb to pinch the bendable top edge of the mask around the bridge of your nose. If the mask has a lower tie, then once the mask is fitted to the bridge of your nose, tie the lower ties behind your head with a bow. Make sure the mask is completely secure. Make sure it covers your nose and mouth so that the bottom edge is under your chin. Wash your hands. Wash your hands before removing the mask. Do not touch the inside of the mask (the part over nose and mouth). It may be contaminated from your breathing, coughing or sneezing. Untie or remove the ear loops and remove the mask by the straps. Throw the mask in the trash. Wash your hands.

SPIRULINA: A PRECIOUS NUTRACEUTICAL

Dr. Jayant Bidkar
Department of Pharmacognosy,
SPCOP, Otur

Spirulina is a biomass of cyanobacteria (blue-green algae) that can be consumed by humans and animals. Three species of it are available viz. Arthrospira platensis, A. fusiformis, and A. maxima. Arthrospira is world spread variety used as a dietary supplement or whole food. It is also used as a feed supplement in the aquaculture, aquarium, and poultry industries. It consists of photosynthetic bacteria that cover the groups Cyanobacteria and Prochlorophyta. This algae represents an important staple diet in humans and has been used as a source of protein and vitamin supplement in humans without any significant side-effects. Spirulina has been used to support a number of health conditions, including fatigue, high cholesterol, high triglycerides, and viral infections, benefits also include weight loss, increased energy, and stimulation of the immune system. Spirulina is a high-nutrient, low-calorie food that contains a lot of nutrition in a small amount of powder. Just like plants, cyanobacteria can produce energy from sunlight via photosynthesis. Spirulina is a fantastic source of antioxidants, which can protect against oxidative damage. Its main It lowers total cholesterol, “bad” LDL cholesterol and triglycerides, while raising “good” HDL cholesterol. Spirulina has anti-cancer properties, Spirulina reduce blood pressure in individuals with normal levels. This reduction is thought to be driven by an increased production of nitric oxide. In case of anaemia, spirulina supplements increases the haemoglobin content of red blood cells and improve immune function. Spirulina appears beneficial, to improved muscle strength and endurance. This is mixed into the culture medium and allowed to grow. It should be regularly agitated using an electric pump or by stirring manually. The temperature, pH and concentration of algae should be monitored. Once the concentration increases to about 0.5g/L it must be harvested. This can be done by simply filtering it through a cloth to obtain a “biomass” of about 10% dry matter per litre.
